OFFICIAL RESOLUTION

OFFERED BY

Councilor Sharon Durkan

Be It Resolved, that the
Boston City Council Celebrates 150 years of:

Old South Church

The Boston City Council recognizes Old South Church's 150 years at 645 Boylston Street, and honors the legacy of its congregation, founded in 1669. From its earliest home at Cedar Meeting House to its pivotal role at Old South Meeting House during the decades leading up to the American Revolution, Old South Church has remained a pillar of faith, community, and service. Now located at the corner of Boylston and Dartmouth Streets in the Back Bay, Old South Church continues to preserve this history while opening its doors to everyone as a space for worship, community groups, recovery programs, arts organizations, and service partners. The special event "If These Walls Could Talk," commemorates the 150th anniversary and exemplifies the Church's commitment to giving back by raising money for the Old South Weekly Pushback initiative, which donates weekly to a mission driven local organization or individual. The Council celebrates Old South Church for its historic contributions and its continued dedication to the people of Boston.
