Summary of the Legislation

Dockets #0397, #0398, #0452, #0403, #0450, #0451, and #0404 provide funding for career center core services through WIOA Adult Services, Wagner-Peyser, and RESEA programs. Jobseekers qualify for services under one or more of these grants based on eligibility criteria such as income level, unemployment insurance status, or designation as dislocated workers. Funds are categorized as service dollars, which directly support jobseekers, or administrative dollars, which are split between the Office of Workforce Development (OWD) and the Private Industry Council (PIC) for oversight and monitoring. Additionally, Docket #0398 includes carry-over funding from FY24.

Dockets #0449 and #0401 provides funding for WIOA Youth programming, which supports 18-24-year-old out-of-school youth facing employment barriers. These funds are distributed through a competitive grantmaking process to nonprofit organizations that offer services and programs designed to help young adults gain skills, education, and employment opportunities.

Information Received at Hearing,

The Committee held a hearing on March 11, 2025, to review a series of grants from the U.S. Department of Labor (DOL). These grants, awarded by the DOL and distributed through the MassHire Department of Career Services, are administered by the City of Boston's Office of Workforce Development. The hearing covered multiple dockets, including six grants supporting dislocated workers and unemployment insurance claimants, three grants funding specialized employment services under the Workforce Innovation and Opportunity Act (WIOA) for youth and adults, and a regional planning grant aimed at developing pipeline programs for high-demand industries and occupations that align with regional workforce priorities.

The Committee was joined by Administration panelists which included Joseph Le, Chief of Staff at the Office of Worker Empowerment; Katy Gall, Director of Grants at the Office of Workforce Development; Lourenco Pires, Program Administrator for WIOA; Neil Sullivan, Executive Director of MassHire Boston Workforce Board/Boston Private Industry Council (PIC); and Angela McCabe, Director of Workforce Development at Boston Private Industry Council (PIC).

Katy Gall, Director of Grants explained that the funds being received are managed by the U.S. Department of Labor (DOL), which establishes the requirements for services that local workforce boards must offer. These funds are then allocated to Massachusetts based on a distribution formula. The Massachusetts Department of Career Services oversees the state's workforce boards, distributing the funds to local boards—such as MassHire Boston—and selecting vendors through a competitive grantmaking process to ensure effective and efficient program implementation.

Boston's management of workforce board funds is overseen by the Boston Private Industry Council (PIC), which serves as the city's MassHire Workforce Board. Board members are appointed by the Mayor. Starting July 1, 2024, the Office of Workforce Development (OWD) assumed the role of fiscal agent, previously held by EDIC. Workforce funds are allocated based on a formula and must be spent within two years, although progress must be demonstrated in the year the funds are awarded.

The Administration shared the range of services provided by Boston's career centers to both job seekers and employers. Job seekers receive career counseling, labor market information, workshops, career fairs, hiring events, training opportunities, and direct job placements. Employers benefit from recruitment assistance and customized training programs tailored to their workforce needs. In FY2025, the two career centers anticipate serving 14,000 job seekers, placing 12,470 into jobs, including 950 individuals with disabilities, 8,500 unemployment insurance (UI) claimants, and 265 veterans. In FY2024, they served 15,076 job seekers, successfully placing 13,675 into jobs, including 1,009 individuals with disabilities, 9,043 UI claimants, and 269 veterans. The career centers also maintain close partnerships with community-based organizations, including "Access Points" such as Charlestown Adult Education and St. Francis House. Additionally, on-site liaisons work specifically with Adult Education and ESOL programs, while bridging programs help residents access community college, job training, and other in-depth support services.

With respect to youth funding, WIOA Youth funding supports out-of-school youth aged 18-24 who face barriers to employment by providing access to post-secondary education or training, evidence-based services to overcome employment challenges, and specialized support aligned with the 14 required program elements of WIOA, with a focus on stabilization services. The Office of Workforce Development (OWD) prioritizes data-driven improvements to enhance youth services and invests in building a coordinated system that strengthens organizational connections and links youth to broader economic opportunities. The Office of Workforce Development stated that they anticipate helping about 120 young people this year, not just by securing a job, but by setting them on a career pathway. Grant recipients have included organizations such as ABCD: Level Up, More Than Words, and Mujeres Unidas Avanzando.

The Committee discussed the unique aspects related to job training and education and the strong relationships PIC has established with teaching hospitals and effective outreach to the immigrant population. The Committee and PIC also highlighted collaborations with the Benjamin Franklin Institute of Technology and Bunker Hill Community College, emphasizing the types of jobs in the high-demand fields these programs are training for such as healthcare and professional services.

Committee Chair Recommended Action

As Chair of the Committee on Labor, Workforce, and Economic Development I recommend moving the listed dockets from the Committee to the full Council for discussion and formal action. At this time, my recommendation to the full Council will be that these matters OUGHT TO PASS.
